Dear valued customer

We would like to inform you that Mölnlycke has announced its intention to separate its Operating Room Solutions (ORS) and Gloves business into a stand-alone company focused on improving efficiency, safety and outcomes in the surgical setting. After the intended separation, Wound Care and Antiseptics will focus on accelerating innovation and investments addressing strategic priorities and changing customer needs.

This move enables each business to have stronger focus and dedication to its customers, respond faster to changing market needs, and to continue developing innovative solutions that create long-term value, for our business and ultimately for our customers.

At Mölnlycke, we remain committed to supporting healthcare professionals and patients throughout the process which aims to be completed during 2027.

We do not anticipate any strategic changes to our current business relationship and will share further information as appropriate over time. As always, our sales teams and customer services remain ready to support you.

On behalf of Mölnlycke.
